

ATAC (Assistive Technology & Augmentative Communication Conference) 2010

13th Dec. 2010

ATAC 2010 took place between December 10th and 12th, with approximately 900 attending.

The ATAC Conference serves as a platform for meaningful discussion of ideas, techniques, problems and solutions for special needs in education and welfare services. The IT revolution of the late 1980's brought hope for significant changes in lifestyle and greater relief for those suffering from physical and mental challenges. Nowadays, however, the nation's economy is mired in stagnation and people is filled with anxiety about the future. ATAC 2010 brought together forward-thinking individuals seeking positive change through the creation of a revised framework for special needs in education and welfare services.

Individuals with unique experiences served as walking encyclopedias at the Living Library, providing conference participants opportunities for direct communication.
